Jennifer Savastino & Colin O'Connor

Gannon Pest Control is a locally owned and operated pest management company proudly serving Central New York. With more than 30 years of experience, Gannon has built a trusted reputation for reliable, effective, and customer-focused pest control services. Recently, Gannon entered into a strategic partnership with Select Exterminating, a family-owned company that shares the same values, traditions, and commitment to community—strengthening Gannon's ability to grow while remaining firmly rooted in Central New York.

Most importantly, Gannon's local operations are not changing. The same office staff and field technicians will continue serving customers throughout the Syracuse area. Jennifer Savastino remains CEO and partner of Gannon Pest Control, continuing to lead the local team and oversee daily operations with the integrity and personal care that have defined the company for decades.

Gannon provides a comprehensive range of residential and commercial pest management services, addressing crawling and flying insects as well as mice and rats. The company utilizes integrated pest management (IPM) techniques that focus on prevention, long-term solutions, and environmentally responsible practices. Services include thorough inspections, identification of pest entry points, and customized treatment plans, with both one-time services and ongoing maintenance programs available.

As part of Gannon's continued growth, Colin O'Connor has stepped into the role of Commercial Sales Representative after more than 11 years as a Gannon service technician. His hands-on experience ensures commercial clients receive knowledgeable, practical recommendations tailored to their specific needs.

What sets Gannon apart is its commitment to customer education and transparency. Office and field teams take the time to explain pest behavior, prevention strategies, and treatment options, while staying current with the latest pest control technologies.

A long-standing fixture in the Central New York Community, Gannon Pest Control is known for prompt response times, courteous professionals, and a strong guarantee of satisfaction. Fully licensed and insured, Gannon continues to deliver safe, effective, and professional pest management—now supported by a strategic partnership that strengthens the future without changing the service customer's trust.
