

We were honored at today's meeting to host Lisa Jordan, Executive Director of both the International Executives Association, and Executives Association of Charlotte, North Carolina. Lisa, who was brought in to our meeting remotely, thanks to David Foor, Visual Technologies, extolled the countless benefits available to each member of the International Execs, of which Syracuse Execs is proudly one of its founding members! As Lisa explained, and as the IEA's website states: "IEA takes your networking to a global level. It connects you directly to a worldwide network of owners, executives and key decision makers who represent the highest standards of products, services and professionalism across the globe. Like your local EA membership, the IEA fosters relationships, commonality, business problem solving, mentorship and advice – on an international scale."

We thank Lisa so very much for her time, talent, and efforts on our behalf!

Here are just a few of the many benefits open to each of us:

- Receive special EA discounted pricing on hotels, car rentals, and other services from fellow IEA member firms.
- Attend EA meetings in other cities and expand your network beyond your local borders.
- Find reliable sources globally for both personal and professional needs when you travel, including legal, economic, and medical help or even just discovering the best places to visit during your stay.
- Exchange business leads or seek counsel with 1000's of other industry leaders.

Firms belonging to IEA are featured on the IEA's company directory and can be found by searching via classification and/or city with direct links to your company's contact information.
